* On the modern standardized Hebrew calendar 1 Nisan fell on April 9 / 10 in 1948, and May 14 (Israel Independence day) fell on 5 Iyar. On the original Hebrew calendar, however, where the new moons can be determined by our modern understanding of the heavens rather than by sight, 1 Nisan would fall on March 10 / 11 and May 14 would, therefore, coincide with the holiday of Shavuot (The Feast of Weeks or Pentecost).

 The dates provided by NASA for the new moons in antiquity are as determined by the Julian calendar. In modern times, however, the dates are set to the Gregorian calendar.
